License-Free TK-3501T- License-Free PMR446, PMR446 Radios, Kenwood ProTalk and UBZ Series Hand Portable Two Way Radios, Named after its operating frequency band of 446.0 - 446.1 MHz, analogue PMR446 is a short PMR Digital Walkie Talkies range voice only communication system which provides a simple, effective and economical radio service for business and non-business users. The system is license-free and unlike mobile phones, there are no contract or call charges to pay. PMR446 was initially conceived as a European system and was first introduced in Eire in 1998. In the UK, PMR446 was operational from 1999 where it successively replaced the former licensed Short-Range Business Radio (SRBR) service.

Widely recognised as the best in its class, Kenwood's analogue ProTalk® PMR446 was first launched in 1999 and is now in its fourth product generation. #ProTalk delivers professional users with instant, reliable radio communications in a rugged, durable proven handset while the lightweight UBZ radio range is ideally suited for use in outdoor pursuits or around the home.
